It is perfect for anywhere that you might want your TV to be a more discrete addition to your room. Click here for a larger version. Built in to the side of the TV, you cannot even see the DVD player from the front, so it looks just like a normal TV. Click here for a larger version. Simply connect a high definition HD device such as a Bluray player, PS3 or Sky HD box, and start enjoying your TV and films in HD. HDMI is the highest possible quality connection, it carries both HD video and audio signals, ensuring you get the best possible picture. HDMI also gives you plenty of connectivity options. Some of the more recent laptops and cameras also have HDMI outputs, so you can easily view HD content from them on your TV. You can also listen to your music collection MP3 format supported. Simply insert your USB media into the side USB input and select your files from the onscreen menu. Click here for a larger version. Simply connect your PC or Mac to the VGA port and view your computer screen on the TV. More recent laptops include HDMI connections which you can also use. So to ensure you can connect any device you may have that uses SCART, we have included a SCART connection at the back of the TV also. There's no monthly fees, and it couldn't be simpler to setup, simply plugin, connect a suitable aerial, and the TV will tune the channels in for you. The actual energy consumption will depend on how the television is used. Not to mention the interactive features that can be accessed via the red button. You can even listen to your music collection.

Simply insert your USB media into the side USB input and select your files from the on screen menu. And using the VGA PC Input to connect your PC or laptop to the TV you can use your TV as monitor.
